Zebulka ran from behind the bar, dropping the pistol on the floor as he ran, and, dropping on his knees beside his wounded friend, begged him to speak. The bartender rushed upstairs, and several more men ran in from the street upon hearing the shot.

Word was sent to the Fourth Precinct station-house, and to the City Hospital for an ambulance, Miller, who was unconscious, was hurried to the hospital. Zebulka was taken to the station-house some time later. In the haste to send the young man to the hospital the circumstances were not closely inquired into, and Zebulka walked out of the salcon. He drove to his stable, and then went home, where he was taken into custody.

A FIELD PIECE EXPLODES.

Sandy Hook, June 11 .- A 3.2-inch rapid-fire field gun, fitted with the Gerdom breech block, burst at the breech to-day during a test. The pieces flew in every direction, but no one was injured, as everyone was either at too great a distance or under cover. The breech block was damaged, but the inventor claims that it showed its superiority over others, in that the gun and not the block went to pleces. The accident is believed to be due to a defective cartridge case. Six experimental cartridges had been fired from the gun. The seventh was the one which caused the gun to burst. It is thought that the gas from the charge worked backward through the case.

CROOKEDNESS IN CAMDEN'S ELECTION.

Camden, June 11 (Special).-An entirely new move has been made by Freedom C. Lippincott, the defeated Democratic candidate, to secure possession of the city treasury. Supreme Court Jus-tice Garrison has granted a rule for the taking of testimony by Circuit Judge Miller on July 19, bearing upon charges of fraud, and a petition for a general overhauling of the May election, which caused so much trouble.

The petitioners allege that seventeen official Lippincott ballots in the first precinct of the Ninth Ward were not counted, and that repeaters voted Ward were not counted, and that repeaters voted on the names of a number of persons, who have made affidavits that they did not vote at the spring election. Affidavits of the alleged self-confessed repeaters accompany the petition filed with Justice Garrison, as well as the affidavits of the persons who say that they did not vote. There are thirty affidavits, fifteen of which purport to be signed by Philadelphia repeaters, and the other fifteen by persons whose names it is alleged were voted on by the repeaters.

Every day after completing the round they have been in the habit of stopping at Steigler's saloon. Jacob Marder is the bartender there. He and Zebulka are friends, and it was the bartender's habit to have Zebulka go behind the bar and work for him at times. Marder, who had been waiting for the two young men, yesterday morning, called to Zebulka to attend to the customers and went to the cellar. Zebulka soid a glass of beer, and, after taking the money and placing it on the back bar, walked to the deak of the proprietor, which was at the upper end of the bar. There was a revolver hanging beside the deak. Zebulka took it out and examined it. Then he pointed it at Miller, who laughingly exclaimed, "I'm not afraid of that thing."

"You're not, eh?" said Zebulka, as he pressed the trigger. The hammer was down, and Zebulka asays that he did not think the revolver could do "The second of the series of Saturday afternoon." The second of the series of Saturday afternoon. The second of the Howard H. Morse, a vestryman of St. Mark's Church (Washington Irving Memorial), when seen yesterdey by a Tribune reporter denied that the vestry of the church was opposed to leasing the rectory to George E. Hutchinson, the former superintendent for John D. Rockefeller's Pocantico Hill property. The story caused much comment in the two villages, and additional facts were brought out. It seems that Hutchinson was discharged by Mr. Rockefeller last week, the reason assigned being that his actions in bringing Mr. Rockefeller's name linto local politics was displeasing to the millionaire. About two months ago Hutchinson discharged George Remsen and William Mullen, two carpenters, because they did not vote a ticket which Hutchinson favored. Mr. Rockefeller has given orders for Hutchinson to vacate his house in the Bedford Road by July 1, and, accordingly, Hutchinson leased St. Mark's rectory.

Jackson is from Oskaloosa, Iowa, and was walking back home from Philadelphia, where he had sone in vain hopes of finding old friends who would nelp him out in his claims for a pension which he intended to present at Washington. He could not find his friends, and with a heavy heart started home with 35 between him and starvation and a hungry family in Iowa. He started to walk hoping to cave his money. Outside of Harrisburg he was hed up by tramps and his money taken. He reached Pittsburg last night almost starved, and while walking across the railroad bridge feil to the ground, forty feet below, where he lay all night, He was found late this morning. Jackson has what seems all the papers necessary to insure a pension. He says this is the first time he ever thought of applying for help from the Government.

Jackson was injured by a shell splinter in the Monitor turret at the same time that Lieutenant Worden was hurt by the solid shot from the Merrimae. He was the last to take to the water in that fatal storm off Hatteras, when the Monitor went down, and in which only five men are said to have escaped. He was on board the double-turreted monitor Houssee at the battle of Fort Fisher.

"I will never forget Fort Fisher while I live," he said; "sixteen hundred of us went ashore and only two hundred got back, the fest were dead or prisoners."

The big tent which was bought by money subscribed by or collected from Sea Cliff people for the Salvation Army, three or four years ago, was shipped away by the Volunteers, who are in charge of the barracks, this week. The man who accompanied it to the station evidently feared that it would not be allowed to go unquestioned, his charges concerning it to the station agent being explicit. An attempt was made some eighteen months ago to remove the tent from Sea Cliff, but the men who had subscribed largely toward it forbade its removal. Two or three of those interested have since died, and, so far as is known, the tent was removed without comment. It cost $200.
